

BOBCAT

What do they look like?

- Bobcats are the most common wildcat in North America.
- They have fluffy gray fur with black spots.

What do they eat?

Bobcats eat mice, squirrels, groundhogs, moles, raccoons, foxes, birds, reptiles, porcupines, and skunks.

Where do they live ?

- Although bobcats can be found all over New Hampshire, they are most common in the Monadnock Region, Lakes Region, and along the Connecticut River.
- Bobcats like to live in forests, swamps, farm lands, and rocky areas.

Notice & Wonder

This is what a bobcat pawprint looks like.

What kinds of animal tracks have you seen in your backyard or in the woods?

Fun Fact

- The name "bobcat" comes from their "bobbed" or stubby tail.
- When they hunt, they wait patiently for their prey in hiding spots, and then pounce to attack.