BRAINSTORM! FILLING EMPTY MILL BUILDINGS

By the end of World War II, almost all of the big factories of the 19th century and early 20th century were closed and sitting empty. But some New Hampshire communities found new ways to use these buildings.

Imagine you work for your local town government, and you have been given the task of brainstorming new uses for the abandoned mill buildings. What would you do with all that space? Draw more lines if you need.
